Customer Problem Statement

The problem statements are defined from the perspective of the employees and the teams responsible for managing employee issues. The statements focus on the difficulties caused by the existing email-based and informal issue-raising process.

Problem Statement (PS)	I am (Customer)	I'm trying to	But	Because	Which makes me feel
Employee Issue Submission	An employee in a large enterprise organization	raise a workplace-related issue such as an access problem, payroll discrepancy, infrastructure request, or HR-related clarification	I must rely on emails or informal communication channels and may not know what information needs to be provided	there is no centralized and standardized mechanism for submitting employee issues with structured information	frustrated and uncertain about whether my issue has been properly captured and will be resolved
Employee Issue Management	An HR or support team member responsible for handling employee issues	manage, prioritize, track, and assign employee issues efficiently	the issues received through emails and informal channels contain inconsistent information and are difficult to track consistently	issue information is not captured through a centralized process with structured fields and defined classifications	overwhelmed and concerned about delays, inconsistent prioritization, and missed or incorrectly assigned issues

Consolidated Problem Statement

Based on the above customer perspectives, the project addresses the need for a centralized and standardized mechanism for raising and managing employee workplace issues.

Employees need a simple way to submit complete and relevant information, while HR and support teams need structured records that can be consistently tracked, classified, prioritized, and managed.

The proposed ServiceNow solution addresses this problem through an Employee Issue Record Producer integrated with the Service Portal, providing a controlled and standardized issue-submission experience.
